

Bereavement Groups

Talking with others who have walked in your shoes can be a source of strength and understanding. All groups are non-denominational and open to the public. Facilitators are trained and committed to helping all people of all walks of life through the difficult journey of grief. The support we can give each other when going through loss of a loved one is powerful and healing. It is important to address your grief - don't wait! Help is just around the corner.
